

The History of Morris Dancing

Morris dancing is an old English tradition. If you can think of any other English traditions still going, come and tell us and you may win a prize.

It started in the 15th century or earlier, but there are very few records. In 1494, Henry VII was entertained by "the Mourice dance", in 1458 a gilded cup engraved with Morris dancers was left in a will and in 1448 the Goldsmiths of London paid 7 shillings for "Moryssh dancers".

Villages in the Cotswolds and the Border counties (with Wales) had sides (teams) of Morris Dancers, with each having its own style or tradition. As the industrial revolution gradually reduced the rural population with a migration to the towns, it died out in the villages, but North West Morris evolved in the industrial towns.

Today Wickham Morris dance in the Cotswold and Border styles, plus several dances that we have created, thus continuing the evolution of the tradition.

Since we kept count, we have raised over £26,000 for charity, so please give generously and help raise more.

This year we are raising money for Pulmonary Hypertension Association, which provides support, understanding and information for all those people whose lives are touched by Pulmonary Hypertension, a rare deteriorating lung disorder in which the blood pressure in the pulmonary artery rises far above normal levels.

Also the Southampton & District Branch of the Alzheimer's Society which locally provides help, information and support for those concerned about all forms of dementia. There are about 700,000 people in the UK with dementia, mainly affecting older people. However, at least 15,000 people in the UK under the age of 65 have also been diagnosed.
